

One diagnosis. Then two ways to pay for the work.

Sydney · AI implementation, forward-deployed · part of the fee paid only on results

support@orris.ai

Orris AI is a Sydney company. We work the way forward-deployed engineers do: inside the operation, connected to the systems it already runs, alongside the people who do the work, for a fixed stretch with an end date. Then we leave, and what was built stays yours.

What you can buy

Option	Price (plus GST)	How long	When we leave
A diagnosis	AUD $290 Plus GST. Credited in full against whatever you book next.	60 minutes	When the 60 minutes are up. The path is yours to take or ignore.
Go live, and we stay with it	AUD $7,900 Start fee, plus GST. Then AUD $790 a month for six months to run it, and a fee per result — result fees capped at AUD $20,000 in total.	Live in 4–6 weeks, then six months alongside	It ends six months after go-live, automatically. After the third month, either of us can end it with 30 days' notice.
Go live, paid once	AUD $18,000 Plus GST. One fixed price for the same build. No monthly fee and no result fee — model and hosting costs go on your own accounts.	Live in 4–6 weeks, plus two weeks' handover	The day it runs without us.

How a scenario goes live

Phase	What happens	What you sign off
01 Map it on site 1–2 weeks	We sit with the people who do the work: which data, which systems, which rules, and where it actually gets stuck.	A one-page scope: what one result is, what it pays, and the count we're starting from.
02 Connect and go live 3–4 weeks	Connected to what you already run — inbox, CRM, accounts, bookings — using access your people already have. Nothing goes live until you've seen it work.	It's handling real work in your systems, and the first results are showing up in the log.
03 Run it alongside you six months	We run it with you, fix what real work turns up, and teach the person who'll own it after us.	Every month: the count, the invoice, and what changed. At the end it's yours, and we go.

Paid once? Phase three is a two-week handover instead.

How the result fee is counted: In the first phase we agree, in writing, what one result is — a qualified enquiry, a booked job, an overdue invoice paid — and what each one is worth, stepping down as volume rises. The workflow counts them in its own log, which you can read. We invoice monthly from that count, and result fees over the six months never go past AUD $20,000 in total.

Say a qualified enquiry is $40 each for the first 30 in a month and $20 each after that. A month with 50 of them is $1,600. A month with none is nothing.

This isn't a bet, and we don't guarantee results. The result fee is charged only on what the workflow actually produced, from numbers both of us can see.

What the agreement says

- What one result is, and what each one pays
- The ceiling on result fees — AUD $20,000 in total
- The end date, and how either of us can end it early
- Which systems we touch, with whose access, and which data leaves them
- That what's built, and the rules written down, are yours
- That we don't guarantee results — and charge no result fee without them
